

CALL LANGUAGE FOR NEW FY11 FACULTY SEARCH

Film/new media production. The department of communication at Georgia State University in Atlanta invites applicants for an anticipated lecturer position in digital film-style and/or new media production to begin in August 2010 pending budgetary approval. Lecturer positions are teaching and service-focused, annually renewable, connect to a potential promotion path, eligible for annual merit increases, and connect to a full benefits package. The position will include teaching undergraduates and M.A. students in film/video production and film studies (e.g., history, aesthetics, generic traditions, national cinemas), with a connecting service responsibility to coordinate departmental support for labs and production facilities. Terminal degree required. Applications should include a letter of application and CV, transcripts, three letters of recommendation, and evidence of teaching effectiveness. An offer of employment will be conditional upon background verification. A review of applications will begin December 15, 2009. Georgia State University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. Women, minorities, and candidates from other traditionally under-represented groups are especially encouraged to apply. Address applications to Dr. Greg Smith, Search Chair, Department of Communication, Georgia State University, 663 One Park Place South, Atlanta, GA 30302-4000.
