

2007-2008 Anticipated Position Announcement

Tenure-Track Assistant Professor in INTERNATIONAL COMMUNICATION

The Department of Communication at Georgia State University in Atlanta invites applicants for a tenure-track assistant professor position in International Communication, to begin in August 2008. Ph.D. required. Candidates should have research programs underway in one of the following areas: mass communication theory, global media systems and practices, postcolonial/neo-colonial studies, international comparative media. Candidates should have the ability to teach in the Department's undergraduate journalism program and also contribute to work done in the M.A. and doctoral mass communication programs, in conjunction with the Department's Center for International Media Education. Applications should include a letter of application and CV, transcripts, three letters of recommendation, and evidence of teaching effectiveness. Review of applications to begin November 15, 2007. Georgia State University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. Women, minorities, and candidates from other traditionally under-represented groups are especially encouraged to apply. Address applications to Dr. Greg Lisby, Search Chair, Department of Communication, Georgia State University, One Park Place South, Suite 662, Atlanta, GA 30303-4000.

International communication is a major area of emphasis in the department's doctoral program, and the work of area faculty is supported by strong connections to international media and policy organizations, and by the work of its Center for International Media Education. CIME receives major grant support for research and journalism workshop training around the world (and especially in the Middle East, Asia, and Central and South America).

Communication Graduate Programs

Georgia State University is a comprehensive research institution (Carnegie RU/H), and offers a two-track Ph.D. program (Moving Image Studies & Public Communication) and a three-track Masters program (Mass Communication, Human Communication & Social Influence, Film & Video) in communication. The Public Communication Ph.D. program offers advanced study relating to three concentrations: Media & Globalization, Audience Studies, and Rhetoric & Politics.

With strong support from the College of Arts & Sciences, the department is implementing significant initiatives to continue program quality improvement (we provide funding for 65 graduate students every year and eight approved faculty hires are slated for the FY08 cycle alone). The rhetoric area was named a top-three "up and coming" program in the NCA 2004 reputational survey. GSU aims to provide assistantships to every admitted Ph.D. student and many MA students in an effort to support the generation of a track record of publication and diverse teaching experiences. Typical support covers tuition, provides a $15,000 annual stipend, and adds more support to subsidize professional travel and health insurance.

Downtown Atlanta provides ready access to many premier research facilities (CNN, the Carter Center, M.L. King Center for Nonviolent Social Change, CDC, Cox Cable, Atlanta-Journal Constitution, and more).

communication@gsu.edu

An Outstanding Public Communication Faculty

Professors

James Darsey (Wisconsin 1985)
Rhetoric, Social Movements, GLBT Discourse

Greg Lisby (Tennessee 1988)
Comm Law, Comm Ethics, Comm Policy

Mary Ann Romski (Kansas 1981)
Developmental Comm

Mary Stuckey (Notre Dame 1987)
Rhetoric, Presidential Comm, Identity

Leonard Teel (GSU 1984)
Intl Media & Culture, Journalism History

Carol Winkler (Maryland 1987)
Rhetoric, Presidential Comm, Argumentation

Associate Professors

Mark Alleyne (Oxford 1992)
Intl Comm, Race/Ethnicity, Media Studies

Jaye Atkinson (Kansas 1996)
Intergenerational Comm, Comm & Stereotypes

M. Lane Bruner (Washington 1997)
Rhetoric, Critical Political Comm, Nationalism

David Cheshier (Iowa 1996)
Rhetoric, Public Deliberation, Critical Theory

Ted Friedman (Duke 1999)
Cultural Studies, New Media

Yuki Fujioka (Washington State 2000)
Stereotypes, Persuasion Studies

Kathy Fuller-Seesley (Johns Hopkins, 1993)
Film History, Audience Studies

Cynthia Hoffner (Wisconsin 1988)
Media Uses & Effects, Quantitative Methods

Marian Meyers (Iowa 1989)
Feminist Media Studies, Cultural Studies

Greg Smith (Wisconsin 1998)
Film & Cognition, TV Studies, Media Studies

Assistant Professors

Arla Bernstein (Florida 1998)
Public Relations, Politics & Gender

Jeffrey Bennett (Indiana 2004)
Rhetoric, Social Movements, GLBT Studies

Hongmei Li (USC 2006)
International Journalism, Media Studies

Merrill Morris (Indiana 2000)
New Media, Internet Studies

Alisa Perren (Texas 2004)
TV Studies, Political Economy of Media

Holley Wilkin (USC 2005)
Health Communication, Communication Theory

Georgia State University